The franchisee will develop, construct, own and operate one or more “MONTANA MIKE’S STEAKHOUSE[®]” restaurants (“Franchised Restaurant”). The MONTANA MIKE’S STEAKHOUSE[®] concept offers patrons a variety of beef, chicken and seafood entrees at affordable prices offered in a rustic, outdoorsy setting, reminiscent of a hunting lodge. The area granted may encompass a single restaurant site or an area intended to be developed with multiple restaurants.

The total investment necessary to begin operation of a Montana Mike’s restaurant franchise is $689,000 to $2,708,000 for a newly constructed restaurant and $439,000 to $1,983,000 for a restaurant converted from an existing steakhouse, including $35,000 that must be paid to the franchisor (or $20,000 for certain existing franchisees). An Area Developer entering into an Area Development Agreement will also pay a minimum Area Development Fee of $10,000 multiplied by the number of restaurants it is required to develop. The Area Developer will receive a minimum credit of $10,000 against each Initial Franchise Fee at the time the Area Developer signs each new Franchise Agreement until the total of all credits equals the total of all Area Development Fees.

What You Need To Know About Franchising Generally

Continuing responsibility to pay fees. You may have to pay royalties and other fees even if you are losing money.

Studio model can change. The franchise agreement may allow the franchisor to change its manuals and business model without your consent. These changes may require you to make additional investments in your franchise business or may harm your franchise business.

Supplier restrictions. You may have to buy or lease items from the franchisor or a limited group of suppliers the franchisor designates. These items may be more expensive than similar items you could buy on your own.

Operating restrictions. The franchise agreement may prohibit you from operating a similar business during the term of the franchise. There are usually other restrictions. Some examples may include controlling your location, your access to customers, what you sell, how you market, and your hours of operation.

Competition from franchisor. Even if the franchise agreement grants you a territory, the franchisor may have the right to compete with you in your territory.

Renewal. Your franchise agreement may not permit you to renew. Even if it does, you may have to sign a new agreement with different terms and conditions in order to continue to operate your franchise business.

When your franchise ends. The franchise agreement may prohibit you from operating a similar business after your franchise ends even if you still have obligations to your landlord or other creditors.

Some States Require Registration

Your state may have a franchise law, or other law, that requires franchisors to register before offering or selling franchises in the state. Registration does not mean that the state recommends the franchise or has verified the information in this document. To find out if your state has a registration requirement, or to contact your state, use the agency information in Exhibit A. The states where we are registered, and the effective dates of the registrations are listed in Exhibit J.

Your state also may have laws that require special disclosures or amendments be made to your franchise agreement. If so, you should check the State Specific Addenda. See the Table of Contents for the location of the State Specific Addenda.
