You will establish and operate a lodge-themed, sports entertainment oriented full-service restaurant under the name Twin Peaks® with a full bar featuring the Twin Peaks® Girls, who are attractive women dressed in theme-related uniforms that promote the girl-next-door image, and American pub-style cuisine, alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages, and other products under the Twin Peaks® brand and proprietary system (“Restaurant”). You may elect to also operate a virtual, delivery-only menu from the Restaurant under the name Good as Cluck®, which features chicken sandwiches, chicken wings and related chicken menu items.

The total investment necessary to begin operation of a single Twin Peaks® restaurant ranges from $1,650,000 to $4,498,000 if you convert existing restaurant space to a Restaurant, or $3,622,000 to $5,446,000 if the Restaurant is newly constructed. These amounts include $225,000 to $250,000 that must be paid to the franchisor or affiliate. If you acquire rights to develop more than one restaurant, then you must also pay us a development fee of 50% of the initial franchise fee for all additional Twin Peaks® restaurants you agree to develop (the total amount of the development fee will depend on the number of restaurants you commit to develop). The total investment necessary to begin operation if you acquire development rights (assuming you commit to 2 to 10 restaurants) is $1,675,000 to $5,671,000. This includes $250,000 to $475,000 that must be paid to the franchisor or affiliate. Restaurants that also feature a Good as Cluck® delivery-only menu will require an estimated additional initial investment in inventory and supplies of $500.

What You Need To Know About Franchising Generally

Continuing responsibility to pay fees. You may have to pay royalties and other fees even if you are losing money.

Business model can change. The franchise agreement may allow the franchisor to change its manuals and business model without your consent. These changes may require you to make additional investments in your franchise business or may harm your franchise business.

Supplier restrictions. You may have to buy or lease items from the franchisor or a limited group of suppliers the franchisor designates. These items may be more expensive than similar items you could buy on your own.

Operating restrictions. The franchise agreement may prohibit you from operating a similar business during the term of the franchise. There are usually other restrictions. Some examples may include controlling your location, your access to customers, what you sell, how you market, and your hours of operation.

Competition from franchisor. Even if the franchise agreement grants you a territory, the franchisor may have the right to compete with you in your territory.

Renewal. Your franchise agreement may not permit you to renew. Even if it does, you may have to sign a new agreement with different terms and conditions in order to continue to operate your franchise business.

When your franchise ends. The franchise agreement may prohibit you from operating a similar business after your franchise ends even if you still have obligations to your landlord or other creditors.

Some States Require Registration

Your state may have a franchise law, or other law, that requires franchisors to register before offering or selling franchises in the state. Registration does not mean that the state recommends the franchise or has verified the information in this document. To find out if your state has a registration requirement, or to contact your state, use the agency information in Exhibit J.

Your state also may have laws that require special disclosures or amendments be made to your franchise agreement. If so, you should check the Disclosure Document Addenda. See the Table of Contents for the location of the Disclosure Document Addenda.
